4. Mr. Barnes reviewed the status of the Jackson Committee. He said that Mr. [redacted] had been forced, for reasons of health, to leave the Committee staff, that he had been replaced as Executive Secretary by [redacted] will become a member of the Jackson Committee Staff. It is expected that the Committee Report, when completed, will consist of five chapters on the following subjects:

- Chapter I - Survey of Russian Cold War Activities
- Chapter II - Survey of Present United States Cold War Programs
- Chapter III - A Critical Evaluation of the United States Programs and an Analysis of their Deficiencies
- Chapter IV - Conclusions and Recommendations for Substantive Changes
- Chapter V - Conclusions and Recommendations for Organizational Changes

The PP Staff is preparing for 24 February presentation to the Committee, Chapter I (material received from State Department, offices under DDI, and the Area Divisions) and the CIA contribution to Chapter II. This statement, which will be in writing, is not definitive, but will be fairly detailed. Mr. Barnes emphasized that the material therein may be supplemented by the Area Divisions. Mr. Barnes also noted that the Committee will meet from February 24th to 28th to read documents, have discussions with its own staff, and, perhaps, call witnesses from the interested agencies.

25X1A

In answer to [redacted] question about the possibility of future reorganization stemming from the work of the Jackson Committee, Mr. Barnes said that DCI feels very strongly that only one Government agency should be engaged in clandestine work. There remains, however, the question whether any of the present CIA projects could, or should, be brought to the surface and carried on under separate auspices. Mr. Barnes said that he has received no information from the Committee to support the rumors of the possible establishment of a separate agency. Two questions regarding CIA should be kept in mind as being of apparent interest to the Committee: (a) Are there not tasks undertaken by CIA which are properly Government effort but which are not appropriately CIA's responsibility? and (b) To what extent has CIA been forced into unfortunate situations by higher authority? Mr. Barnes recommended that the Area Deputies keep in mind ascertainment of the office which started projects and the offices or offices which approved them, when these projects are reviewed for the evaluation in Chapter III of the Jackson Committee Report. Mr. Barnes emphasized the need for an impartial evaluation of the PP effort within the next few months, and said that if constructive suggestions for present or future operations are forthcoming, they will surely receive serious consideration.

5. Mr. Barnes reported on the proposed budget for FY 1954. He said the figure prepared for [redacted] was somewhat lower than the amount
